

Small Group Resource List

Foundational Books for Study and Discussion

The goal of these resources is to provide leaders with trustworthy content for study and discussion, particularly in the first couple years of a group's inception. After completing the Concentrating on the Majors study (COM), these categories are given as a sort of quarterly food group. If a group meets three quarters a year (summers off), a study in each of these areas at least once a year will help make sure the major areas of Biblical manhood are being addressed. YBL Group Curriculum should reflect the needs of the individual group. So a group may not follow the suggested path exactly.

Area 1: The centrality and trustworthiness of the scriptures. The Bible is the inerrant and infallible Word of God, the only rule of faith and practice. At least twice a year, it is good for the group to study directly from Biblical books to develop the personal capacity to read the Bible and apply it to life.

Area 2: Embracing and embodying leadership in the family & church. Not all men are married or have children, but most are or will be. These practical areas of life are crucial and modern culture does little to nothing to help men develop along Biblical lines in living out the roles of husband, father & elder.

Area 3: Being a witness for Christ at work and in community. Books on business and stewardship help us to think through the critical assumptions we make about our work, both how and why we do it. Apologetics and Evangelism books help us to continue to challenge and train ourselves to share our faith boldly in the public spheres we engage. Discipleship books help us to consciously think through the mission Jesus has given us, and how to grow in the ability to obey his command to make disciples, at home, in church and in the marketplace.
